

TO RESUME FIGHTING IS LAST ULTIMATUM

ALLIES DO NOT MEAN TO FURTHER DELAY IN DECIDING TURKISH QUESTION.

NOTE UNSATISFACTORY

Turks Fail to Answer the Requests of the Powers in a Manner Acceptable to Those Concerned.

Constantinople, Jan. 30.—The Balkan allies today gave notice of the termination of the armistice. The period of grace of four days starts at seven o'clock this evening.

Watch Results. London, Jan. 30.—Events in the Balkan peninsula are moving with such rapidity that the world may soon be confronted not with the question of peace or war, but with a catastrophe which will lead Turkey into a tremendous civil war.

Troops Revolt. Those who know the Ottoman empire believe the revolt among the Turkish troops on the Tchatalja lines was more grave than announced in the short dispatches passed by the censor.

More Expected. Close observers of events in Turkey expect similar revolts will occur in the Asiatic provinces where the elements opposing the Young Turks are stronger than in European Turkey.

Not Received. None of the delegates of the Balkan nations has yet received any official communication concerning Turkey's reply to the note of the powers. When the gist of the document was communicated to them today they declared that after their note of yesterday in which they officially broke off peace negotiations they can make no further move without instructions from their governments.

Austria's Views. Vienna, Jan. 30.—A semi-official version of the Turkish reply to the note of the European powers says that the Porte proposes the Tunduz river as the dividing line between the Bulgarian and Turkish portions of Adrianople.

As to Islands. In respect to the islands in the Aegean Sea Turkey claims that the Aegean islands outside the entrance to the Dardanelles straits must remain in her possession, but she is prepared to grant the others an autonomous government.

May Compromise. Constantinople, Jan. 30.—The Turkish government displays a spirit of compromise in its reply to the note, handed to it by the representatives of the European powers on January 17.

Reply Made. The response was presented today by Mahmud Shekief Pasha to Mr. John von Pallavicini, dean of the diplomatic corps in the Turkish capital. The note stipulates for the retention by Turkey of those quarters of the fortress of Adrianople in which the holy shrines are situated.

Much Leeway. It proposes to have in the hands of the powers the disposal of the land on the right bank of the Maritza river, which runs through Adrianople. At the same time the Ottoman government consents to the dismantling of the fortifications of that city.

Aegean Islands. In reference to the Turkish islands in the Aegean Sea the document insists on the maintenance of Turkish sovereignty there owing to the proximity of the islands to the Turkish mainland, but it intimates the readiness of the Ottoman government to leave the settlement of the insular regime to the powers.

Demands Aid. The reply takes note of the promises made by the European powers in their recent joint communication respecting the giving of aid in the future development of the territory of the Turkish empire.

Religious Grounds. The religious and historical grounds which compel the Porte to stand out for the retention at all events of that portion of Adrianople containing the sacred shrines are recapitulated at the end of the reply.

Not Acceptable. London, Jan. 30.—"Emphatically the Turkish reply to the note of the European powers is not acceptable," was the comment made by Dr. Danneberg, leader of the Bulgarian peace delegation, when he was shown the terms of the Ottoman response. He continued:

No Fresh Negotiations. "Speaking on behalf of all the allies I state that the Turkish reply is not of a character to form the basis of fresh negotiations. We have said that the fortress of Adrianople and the Turkish islands of the Aegean Sea must be ceded and without this the negotiations will be resumed."

Cede Land or Fight. "Moreover, this session must be made before hostilities are resumed, as the first shots will change our conditions."

War is Certain. Paris, Jan. 30.—The Bulgarian minister of finance, T. Theodorov, who is on his way to Sofia from the London peace conference, declared today that he regards the resumption of war between the Balkan allies and Turkey as certain. "The first engagement will probably open next Wednesday," he added.

PERMANENT HEADQUARTERS ARE TO BE ESTABLISHED

LEGISLATURE SEEKS TO LOWER EXPENSES

Joint Committee on Finance Evolves a Plan for Economy in Printing and Clerical Work.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 30.—To expedite the business of the state legislature and to save printing and clerical bills, the joint committee on finance has evolved a plan whereby all departments of the state government attending to submit appropriation bills must submit them directly to the joint committee on finance rather than to individual members of the legislature for introduction. This system and the model budget are expected not only to shorten the session materially but to make unnecessary large items of expense heretofore entailed.

At a recent meeting of the joint committee on finance, unanimous approval was given to a resolution that this committee request all state departments to make known their needs to the committee. This request was made to the 58 state departments, boards and commissions in a letter, signed by Senator George E. Scott and Assemblyman Ray J. Nye, chairman of their respective house committees on finance, in which it is said in part:

"In order that you may more fully understand the purpose of the committee in adopting this resolution, we would advise that under the old plan it has been the custom for departmental appropriation bills to be submitted on the floor of the legislature by individual members. These bills would be recorded, printed for use of the legislature, referred to one or more committees, and finally, very often late in the session, be referred to the joint committee on finance. When the finance committee considers such bills and holds executive hearings, it is very usual that some amendments are found to be necessary. This means additional cost, and, we believe, unnecessary delay in having the bill, as finally amended, considered by the legislature. If the appropriation bills of various departments and institutions are submitted directly to the joint committee on finance, it seems apparent that a large printing cost can be saved, and that considerable work in the clerical department of the legislature will be eliminated. After the original bill has been considered by the committee and public hearings have been held on the matter, it will be possible for the finance committee to submit a committee bill which would be as complete and perhaps in better form than would be possible should bills originate and proceed in the manner customary heretofore. It would seem reasonable to anticipate that much delay can be eliminated by this plan."

The committee makes plain that this resolution does not prejudice the right of anyone to submit bills through individual members or through other committees. Departments not intending to submit an appropriation bill need not do so. The exceptional advantage to the finance committee of having the departmental estimates for the succeeding biennial period is the committee's position in considering the estimates for and to prepare appropriation bills as may be necessary and in a systematic manner. The committee assures ample opportunity for hearings and discussions in which the departments may be interested.

SUICIDE PACT FOR HUSBAND AND WIFE

French Couple Decide to Die Rather Than be Separated From One Another.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Paris, Jan. 30.—A double tragedy was caused here today by a doctor's orders that a man and wife would have to be separated because the woman was suffering from an incurable spinal disease.

The sick woman Madame Paul Carriere was told last night she must go to a public hospital. Her husband sent their children to spend the night with an uncle. When the children left their parents were distracted with grief and the wife expressed the wish to die rather than be sent away from her husband. This morning both were found dead in their home, the woman strangled by her husband and the man hanging in the doorway.

INTEREST IS SHOWN IN UNIVERSITY WORK

Rural Community Interests, Theme of Discussion at Big Gatherings Under Auspices of University of Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 30.—Four special courses for farmers, their wives and sons and daughters, going on at the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin this week have attracted hundreds from all parts of the state.

"Community Interest" is the theme of the ten days farmers' course which opened this morning. How Wisconsin can be made a bigger seed-grain state, was discussed by Prof. R. A. Moore this afternoon. Marketing eggs through the creamery, was explained by Prof. J. G. Halpin of the poultry department.

"Woman's Exodus From the Farm or Bricks Without Straw," was the theme of Miss Abby L. Marlett's practical talk to the farmers, in which she pointed out the conditions that made farm life unattractive to young women.

Seventy-four boys and girls from all parts of the state are attending the Young People's course in Agriculture. Fifty of these young people are having all their expenses paid by local agricultural associations as a result of having won scholarships in seed-growing contests. The attendance in this course is forty per cent larger than last year when 52 were enrolled.

The Women's Course in Home Economics and the Demonstration School in Home Economics with the slogan, "Increasing Home Efficiency," are being well attended by housewives and their daughters from many counties. How to buy food wisely, labor-saving devices in dish-washing, sweeping and dusting, dry-cleaning at home, household accounts, laundry apparatus and chemicals, the right of the child to be well born, cooking with alcohol and electricity, and the cost to the community of unfit marriages, are among the live topics for discussion by the women in this course.

A special daily course for creamery and cheese factory operators and managers opened this morning and will continue until Feb. 1.

J., close personal friend of President-elect Wilson, resulted in the announcement late last night that Mr. Bryan had given a positive assurance that he would accept the portfolio of secretary of state in the Wilson cabinet.

Mr. Alexander left early today for Trenton and he is believed to be the bearer of Mr. Bryan's answer to Mr. Wilson.

LABOR PARTY VOTES TO FAVOR SUFFRAGE

Instruct Members in Parliament to Oppose Franchise Bills Which Do Not Include Women.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Jan. 30.—The British labor party today officially declared itself in favor of woman suffrage. By a vote of 550 to 427 a conference of the representatives of most of the trades unions of the United Kingdom adopted a resolution instructing labor members of parliament to oppose any franchise bill in which women were not included.

The significance to the woman's suffrage movement of this resolution is very great. The trades unions have between two and three million members nearly all of whom are electors, and their attitude would carry enormous weight in case woman suffrage were made a plank in the program of any party at a general election.

Greater Activity Necessary at Panama To Secure Opening of Canal At End of Year.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Jan. 30.—Recent slides of earth and rock into the Culebra Cut will make necessary great activity if the Panama canal is to be opened before the end of the present year. More than half a million yards of earth and rock have fallen into the cut this month, and engineers fear another impending break at Purple Hill will add not less than one million yards.

FOUR DIE IN FIRE IN CHICAGO HOTEL

Three Men and One Woman Meet Death When North Clark Street Hotel Burns Early Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, Jan. 30.—Four persons, three men and one woman, were burned to death, three men were seriously injured and a dozen others suffered lesser hurts in a fire which early today destroyed the Iowa Hotel, a four story brick structure at 320 to 322 North Clark street.

The hotel was a cheap affair which had only wooden cots for beds and was above a saloon. All of the dead were found in the rooms they had occupied which were in the south division of the building where there was no access to a stairway only in the rear. Those seriously hurt jumped from windows either into an alley or onto the spur of the Northwestern "L."

The dead: James O'Garra, 30 years old, New Haven, Conn.; B. Benjamin, 40 years old, home unknown, James Love barber 35 years old, 117 Marion street, Oak Park, Ill.; Miss Pearl Clark, also known as Wilson, 27 years old.

When the firemen arrived clouds of smoke were coming from every window. It was their theory that those who lost their lives had been awakened but were unable to find their way out of the building. The damage to the building was estimated at $15,000. No cause was given for the fire.

HORSEBACK CRUSADE SUFFRAGISTS' PLAN

New York Women Propose Coast to Coast Trip on Fiery Chargers In Interest of Their Cause.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Jan. 30.—A coast to coast trip on horseback by woman suffragists is being planned for the spring according to announcement. It is proposed to start from this city as soon as the highways in the east are fit for travel and make the equestrian journey across the continent by easy stages, scattering suffrage oratory and literature through a faithful line of states east of the Rockies. San Francisco would be the terminus, from which city the women riders would ship their horses back by rail.

It was said at suffrage headquarters that two women had already pledged to make the unusual pilgrimage and other women who doubted that they could qualify as "cavaliers" have agreed to furnish mounts for their more agile sisters. Plans, however, at present are only tentative.

The company refuses to pay a uniform scale, claiming some men should have different wages according to their efficiency.

ATTACKS PROPOSED SINGLE YEAR TERM

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Jan. 30.—An attack on the proposed single six year presidential term as a measure advocated by aspirants to the presidency was made in the senate today by Senator Dixon, chairman of the progressive national committee, who declared he did not believe there was any great public demand for the proposed change in the constitution.

"If the truth must be stated," he said, "this resolution might be entitled 'a proposed amendment to the federal constitution for the relief of certain aspirants for the presidency of the United States.'"

The senate took up the Works resolution proposing the amendment under agreement to vote before the close of the legislative day. Senator Payne, democrat offered a provision that when the amendment should be ratified the president then in office should be entitled to a six year term.

POUR HOT SHOT INTO THE M'GOVERN CAMP

Bill Introduced in Assembly That is Aimed Directly at Governor's Attitude at National Convention.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 30.—Delegates sent to political conventions may hereafter be required to take an oath to "faithfully carry out the wishes of the political party as expressed by its voters at the time of his election."

A measure containing the above provision that the primary be applied to delegates to national conventions and presidential electors was introduced in the assembly today by Assemblyman C. H. Everett of Racine. It is closely modeled after the Oregon law on this subject. The bill provides that the governor shall issue certificates to the delegates to the different national conventions. The traveling expenses of the delegates are to be paid by the state. The expenses of not more than two delegates are to be paid from each congressional district. Presidential electors are also to be named by the people. The two candidates for the nomination of electors at large receiving the highest number of votes shall be the nominee of the party as the electors at large. There will also be one nomination in each congressional district by each party at the primary.

The bill is creating the widest interest. At the present time the presidential electors have been selected by the state central committee. The whole enor of the Everett measure is to allow the people the fullest opportunity to express their preference on the subject.

VARIOUS OTHER MEASURES.

A bill designed to relieve the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company of Milwaukee from its burden of taxation in this state came in to the senate yesterday afternoon. At present it is taxed 3 per cent of its gross income, covering all business written in the country. The Weigel bill proposes to tax such companies 5 per cent on all business written in Wisconsin. It has the endorsement of the Northwestern Mutual, it is understood.

Senator Browne offered a bill to reenact an old bill repealed through inadvertence. It provides that school buildings may be condemned if found unsafe or insanitary.

Senator Linde introduced four bills. One proposes to make the general statute regarding the maintenance of railway crossings inapplicable to cities with special charters. Specifically, it provides that the amendment "shall not repeal nor change the provisions of any special city charter requiring railroad companies to construct and maintain at their own expense such bridges, gates, viaducts, tunnels, approaches, or other conveniences at all public crossings as may be necessary and the provisions of such special charters are hereby declared and made to be in full force and effect." The bill will remedy a situation at Superior, where city officials are urging its passage.

BILL AS TO COURTS.

The second Linley bill amends the statute on nuisances by giving a cause of action at equity as well as at law, and the action may be brought by any citizen. It may not be dismissed without the consent of the court. Another provides that juries in municipal courts, except in Milwaukee and Racine counties, may be drawn in the same way now governing in circuit courts—from a jury list prepared by a jury commission. This is intended to obviate the necessity of sending an officer out into the street to bring in tatemens. The fourth bill provides that a woman violating the moral law, either with or without consent, may be entitled to damages, to be assessed by a jury, which shall in no case be less than $1,000.

MEMORIAL FOR THE LATE SENATOR HARLAN B. BIRD OF WAUSAUKEE WAS ADOPTED.

COMMUNITIES SHOULD VOTE ON SALOON LICENSE FEES

According to Assemblyman Richardson, Novel Bill.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 30.—Probably $2,000,000 would be annually saved to the saloonkeepers of the state if the Richardson bill be passed. His bill requires the community to vote on the subject of whether any change is to be made for a saloon license. Richardson contends that if the saloon business is desired that saloonkeepers should not be required to pay a license fee, any more than a blacksmith or the grocerman. A recent bulletin compiled indicates that there are upwards of 7,000 saloons in the state paying license fees of from $200 to $500. He maintains that some localities would not tolerate the saloon were it not for the license revenue received.

Passes a Vote of Want of Confidence For First Time in its History—Disapprove Proposals.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, Jan. 30.—The German imperial parliament today passed for the first time in history a vote of want of confidence in the government. The question before the house was the approval of the government's reply to the interpolation of the chancellor by the Poles yesterday. They asked what the chancellor intended to do to "prevent the exportation of Polish land owners in Prussia by the Prussian government, a measure irreconcilable with the spirit of the imperial constitution." The house today carried by 213 against 97 a resolution of disapproval of Dr. Hermann Lisco's reply in which said the matter was purely an internal one for Prussia and had nothing to do with the imperial parliament.

CONGRESSMEN SNEEZE BECAUSE THEY HAVE REAL REASONS TO Demonstration of Pepper in Lower House Causes Considerable Commotion.

Washington, Jan. 30.—In a peppy atmosphere which kept senators at the sneezing point, representatives of manufacturers of flavored extracts, spices and pepper appeared today before the senate manufacturers committee to ask the "net weight bill" to be amended so as to permit "reasonable variations." They produced samples to show that it was impossible to manufacture glass containers of precisely the same size. "It seems to me a hardship and an unreasonable addition cost to require the man who sells peanuts at the ball parks to have the weight marked on each package," declared Senator Oliver, chairman.

The conference report on the immigration bill was again accepted today by the house. It was the third time the measure had been taken up in the house because of the senate's insistence in further conference. It was adopted after a debate during which the bill was characterized by some as un-American, un-patriotic, vicious and unnecessary and warmly defended by others. It now goes to the senate.

Chairman Underwood stated at the opening of today's tariff hearing that the present 20 percent tariff on harness and saddlery was too high. "We are not going to write a prohibitive tariff," said Mr. Underwood.

BILL FOR NAMING FARMS IS KILLED IN COMMITTEE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Jan. 30.—Everett's bill for the naming of farms was slated for death by the committee on state affairs yesterday afternoon and came back in the assembly this morning with an unfavorable report. The bill provided that the register of deeds keep a book in which the names of farms could be recorded. Before the committee Assemblyman Everett made an interesting argument. He declared that the registration of farms would create a love for the farm.

The committee also reported for non-concurrence the Hanson bill to increase the per diem of members of the county board from $3 to $5 and 29 A., introduced by Mr. Roessler, providing that the trustee of county asylums may insure the county buildings under their supervision. This duty is now imposed upon the county treasurer to insure all county buildings.

LIVESTOCK FARMING URGED IN WISCONSIN

LEADING STOCK EXPERT OF STATE REVIEWS POSSIBILITIES.

MEANS SOIL FERTILITY

Is An Important Step Toward Intensified Farming the Demand For Which is Constantly Increasing.

"Among all the industries of the Badger State," according to Chris Schroeder, one of Wisconsin's leading stock experts, "there is none wider in scope or more far reaching in its effects than that of raising live stock. It is," he believes, "a direct source of income of fully one-third of the population of the state, while practically every resident of the state is in a large measure dependent upon its products in the household. The income from dairy products alone during the past year, at a conservative estimate, has been placed at $190,000,000, while the income resulting from the sale and slaughter of all domestic animals amounted to approximately $60,000,000 for the same period."

Further Development.
"It is possible, however, to increase the live stock industry of our state far larger than its present proportions. The industry is now only partly developed. Its present scope is only an indication of its future possibilities. Wisconsin can well afford to lead every intense effort toward developing a larger and better live stock industry."

"The development of this industry is of particular importance to the state because with more and better live stock there comes increased fertility to its farms and a larger and better crop production. We are today confronted with the situation that there is little or no uncultivated land left from which we can expect immediate return agriculturally and our future policy must be to meet the rapidly growing demands of a rapidly growing population by greatly increased yielding per acre."

"The present cause of high cost of living brought down to its last analysis is the result of no other condition than that farm production in all lines of agricultural endeavor, namely, the stock, dairy and crop production has not kept pace with the country's rapid growth in population. The cause of high cost of living goes straight back to the soil. Other factors have contributed toward this end but after complete and final analysis appear as mere incidents."

Yields Decreasing.
"It is opportune in this connection to here consider a few facts that must stand out and stare every conscientious thinker in the face. While they apply in general to the entire country, they also apply in particular to every section and every state in the country. All states are equally concerned in them. In the last ten years the population of our country has increased 21 per cent; our farm area has increased 4.8 per cent. In other words the number of mouths to be fed has increased five times as rapidly as our source of food supply in the last decade. Moreover, the production of the staple crops, corn, wheat, soy, and barley, in the same time, increased only one per cent, while the increase in improved farm land, land from which additional crops could be raised, was 15.4 per cent. Thus we see that the country has actually been producing less per acre of staple crops than ten years ago. The soil is playing out. It no longer holds the capacity for production that it formerly did. With our greatly increased and still rapidly increasing population, it is simply up to us to increase the productivity of our present improved land acreage unless we wish to see the cost of living continue to go higher and wish to pass a legacy of famine, of famine down to our future generations."

Improve Fertility.
"To secure this increase productivity of our soil, it is necessary to increase the fertility of the soil. The main elements of soil fertility are phosphorus, nitrogen and potash. Liberal available supplies of these are actively actually necessary in the soil for successful crop production. These elements may be purchased in commercial fertilizers, but actual experiments at the Illinois Experiment Station have shown that as a rule the cost of purchasing these for supplying everything needed for fertilization was so high as to consume the gain resulting in increased crop production for their use. They also do not add humus to the soil which is further necessary to successful crop production. Farm manure, however, a by-product of the live stock industry, supplies these elements at very low cost and has the additional value for its influence in loosening and peening the soil and adding humus. Thus the importance of the live stock industry to the welfare of the country is readily and easily be understood."

"The rapid growth of the dairy industry in Wisconsin during the last decade has done much to choke soil depletion in this state. This industry, however, has its limitations because of labor requirements and the large amount of capital necessary to proper equipment, and so, even in this, the greatest dairy state in the country, we find that there are no more than an average of nine milk cows on a farm, a number entirely inadequate to produce sufficient farm manure to properly fertilize its farms, the average size of which is 119 acres."

Place for Livestock.
"It is because of this and because of corn, alfalfa and clover are being grown in greatly increased quantities that there is a place for many more beef cattle, sheep and swine, and that more horses should be raised on Wisconsin farms. Some of our special dairy farmers are able to maintain an average of one cow per acre of farm land so it ought to be possible for each farmer in the state to keep one cow, one horse, one sheep, one pig and one hog, or the equivalent of those on each two acres of his farm area. They are needed by the land and will give large additional cash returns if they are given proper feed and management."

"It is intensive farming, that which properly combines grain and livestock growing by means of which the Wisconsin farmer can equal, and surpass the production per acre of European farms, and by means of which they cannot only maintain, but rebuild, the fertility of our soil. The increased income that would result from farming would not alone benefit the farmers and their families; it would also benefit every other industrial pursuit in the state. Business men and manufacturers are today more than ever cognizant of the fact that the welfare of their industries depends upon the well doing of the great body engaged in agricultural pursuits. It has been truly said that the farmers' industry is the basis of all progress in the world."

Show on in Madison.
"The Wisconsin Live Stock Breeders' Association and the animal husbandry department of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, realizing the full significance of the foregoing facts are co-operating to conduct a monster winter live stock show in Madison from January 3 to 10, during the two weeks' Farmers' Course. Every breed of dairy or beef cattle, horses, sheep, and swine having merit for Wisconsin conditions, will be represented by carefully selected and typical specimens. Included in the exhibit, which will be chosen almost entirely from Wisconsin herds, studs and flocks, will be a number of blue ribbon winners and champions at the leading state fairs of the country during the past and other seasons. Other features of special interest to Wisconsin stockmen will be provided by the animal husbandry department of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, while Wisconsin's splendid natural resources for live stock husbandry, which are not excelled anywhere in the country and thus equalled in a few other states, will also be emphasized."

Wisconsin is ideally located, has an ideal climate and soils naturally endowed to make it the greatest breeding center of high class live stock in all our great country, whether it is horses, cattle, sheep or swine. There is not a state in the union that is better located or more completely endowed to accomplish this end."

SANITARY DRINKING CUP LAW PROPOSED

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 30.—The rule of the state board of health directed against the use of the public drinking cup in public places is made law in a bill introduced in the legislature today by Assemblyman Archie McComb of Green Bay. It places the ban on the common cup in such public places as railway stations, educational institutions, department stores, hotels, lodging houses and public buildings. So long as the rule remained a board of health order, its effectiveness was not complete and Mr. McComb's bill is designed to make it fully enforceable. Mr. McComb also offered a bill to increase the number of places where the roller towel is prohibited from use. The board of health is given power to include the use of the towel is inimical to the public health.

Visiting Nurse Bill.
A visiting nurse for counties is proposed in a bill introduced in the assembly by Assemblyman Phillip Gannon of Superior. The measure provides that the county board of supervisors may employ a nurse who shall be a consulting expert on hygiene for all schools not already having medical inspection. It shall also be the duty of the nurse to give instruction to tuberculosis patients and others in the best hygiene methods to be observed in preventing the spread of tuberculosis.

Within a few days Assemblyman Archie McComb of Green Bay, will introduce a bill to increase the jurisdiction of the municipal court of Green Bay, so that appeals may be taken from a decision of this court direct to the supreme court, without the action of the circuit court intervening.

Miscellaneous Bills.
Assemblyman C. B. Estabrook announced today that a hearing on the domestic relations court bill for Milwaukee would be held by the committee on cities next Wednesday. He declined to make comments on the measure, saying that he had not had time to read it as yet.

Amending the statute on attachments to make it certain that a mortgagee's interest on land is attachable is the intent of another bill by Mr. McComb today. The present statute is not clear on this subject.

A fourth bill by Mr. McComb authorizes the state board of health to act jointly with the United States Geological survey in determining the sanitary and other conditions and nature of the natural water supplies of the state, and appropriating $3,000 contingent upon the government's cooperation.

Get Rid of Pimples, Quick

Stuart's Calcium Wafers Are Wonder Workers in Every Variety of Skin Troubles.

Many people have been heard to say that they used creams and lotions for years without effect, yet after five or six days of Stuart's Calcium Wafers their complexions were perfectly clear.

"Stuart's Calcium Wafers Are Simply Grand to Remove Pimples and All Skin Eruptions."

LINK AND PIN GETS ENFORCEMENT OF HEADLIGHT LAW

Senator L. E. Cunningham Calls Attention of Attorney General to Violations of Act.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 30.—The 1911 Wisconsin law requiring railroads to use electric headlights on their locomotives, which has been a dead letter, will henceforth be enforced, according to Attorney General Owen. At the instance of Senator L. E. Cunningham of Beloit, Mr. Owen took the matter with the companies and secured their promise to install the electric headlights at an early day. Many crossing tragedies and other troubles may be averted by the new system, the lights being more powerful. Senator Cunningham was led to take up the case with the attorney general by a group of locomotive engineers from his district, who told him the lights had never been placed on engines as required by law.

The matter was reported to the local committee and improvements were made today. All of the St. Paul men agree that the atmosphere will not be quite so blue and more pure hereafter.

Orders were received from the officials warning men not to blow off steam from the locomotives near platforms or highways where there is traffic, during freezing weather as it forms a coating of ice which makes conditions dangerous for pedestrians.

Some one told a story the other day of Young Griffo, the wonderful Australian boxer. Griffo in his prime was in the habit of going on terrible sprees, but he usually managed to straighten out in time for his ring engagements. He did this by inducing the police and magistrates to arrest him and lock him up a short time before fights. In jail he would do his training, as sparring partners were allowed to visit him daily. And he couldn't get any liquor. Just before he fought George Dixon in New York to a ten-round draw he was training in a Brooklyn jail. The night before the battle, some drunk who was put into the jail got noisy. This man, Griffo, furious, and he proceeded to knock the vociferous gentleman down, exclaiming indignantly: "There, blame yer, keep quiet, I am a training and I can't ave this 'ere bally row."

Bert Shotten, the only outfielder on the St. Louis Browns' roster who has major league class, is a holdout. Why? "I've been playing for a minor league salary," says Bert, "and I don't propose to do that any longer." Somehow, the St. Louis folks don't seem to appreciate Bert. Last season he wound up with a sticking average of .250, ranking second to Merrill Pratt, who headed the list of Browns regulars with a batting average of .302. Bert led the team a base running, he played in every game, and topped the team in run getting with a score of 85 runs. His fielding average was .941.

Manger Evers of the Chicago Cubs is the father of an idea which ought to be worked into the baseball rules at the earliest possible moment. Here's the idea: Allow a base runner to advance a base every time a pitcher gives a base on balls. Also diminish the number of balls from four to three. Fans will take to this idea. When a twirler deliberately passes a heavy hitter to get a weaker one (and this happens all too often) the spectators are disgusted. But the crafty pitcher would be a lot less likely to do this little trick if there were men on second and third. The scheme aims to make the pitcher put the ball over the plate. If adopted, it would increase the hitting twofold.

Klaus says the American boxers who go abroad expecting to pick up a lot of easy money by kicking European fighters will get fooled. They have some real tough pugs over there, says Frank. Klaus is matched to fight Billy Papke in Paris on March 25, for a purse of $25,000. The winner of that bout will proclaim himself world's middleweight champion.

POCKET BILLIARDS MOST INTERESTING

Tournament Opens at The Elks' Club Before an Interesting Gallery—Many Surprises in the First Games.

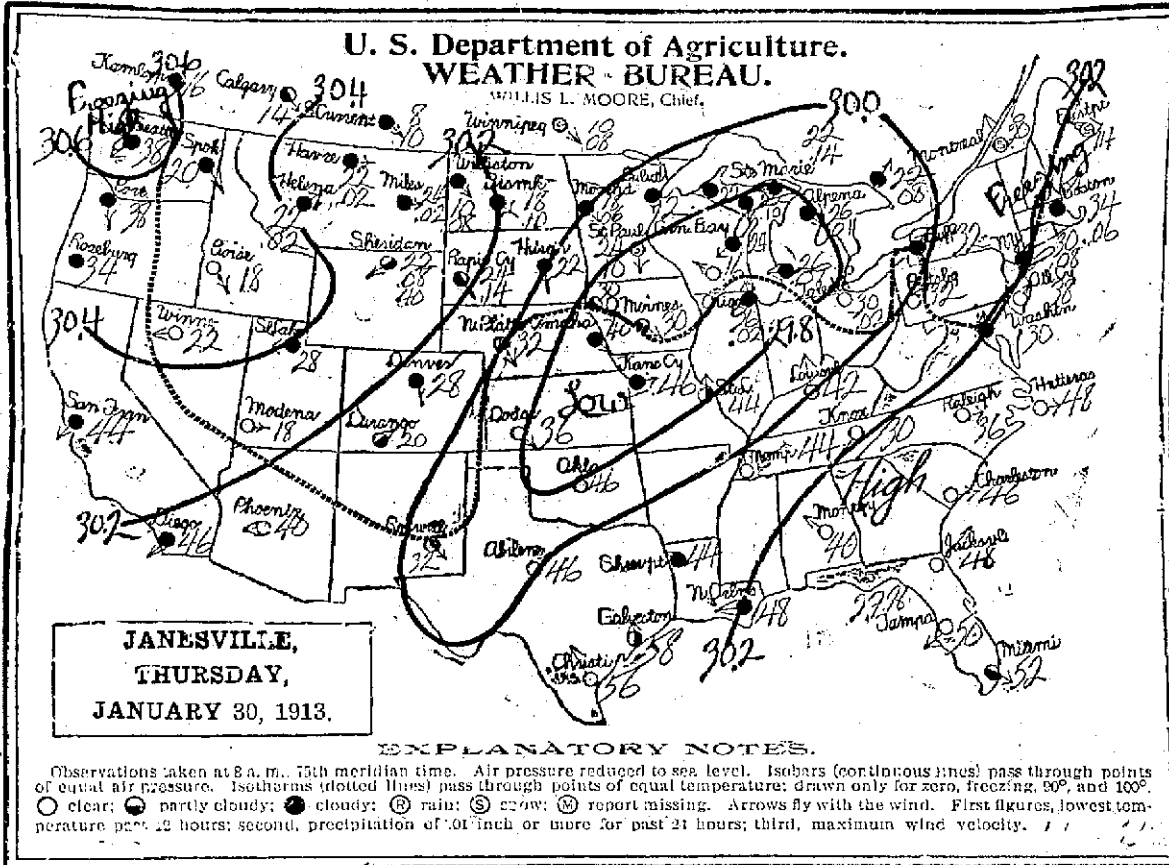

Interest in the Elks' Pocket Billiard tournament which opened last night is at fever heat. Aside from the members of the different teams captained by Fred Baker and C. L. Miller, who were present, there was a large gallery of interested spectators who cheered the various players on to victory. Even the girls bridge players deserted their games to enjoy the spectacle. Captain Miller led off for his team by defeating Captain Baker 20 to 11. Al Rotstein, of Miller's team won from Tom Murphy 30 to 17. Joseph Connell of Baker's team trimmed his opponent Joseph Donahue of the Miller outfit 20 to 28 and Louis Avery of the Baker side defeated William McNeil 20 to 22. This gives Miller's team a slight lead in the first games which may be reversed later. The games will be continued this evening. The pairings being as follows: the first named players being on the Baker team. Lynch versus Hiram Murdoch, George Williamson versus Munson, Al Wilson versus Jules Levy, Louis Levy versus Thomas Nolan, Atwood versus Burgett, Joseph Farnsworth versus Horbert Holme, Frank Ryan versus George Caldwell, Harold Schwartz versus Ben Smith and P. J. Mount, opponent not picked yet. The games are all call shots, thirty balls and the losing team will have to banquet the winners some evening next week.

VARSITY RESERVES HERE ON SATURDAY

Cardinals Will Have Fast Team to Oppose Them in Game Scheduled for Present Week.

The Janesville Cardinals will meet the Wisconsin Reserves on the local floor Saturday night. This game will undoubtedly be the hardest fought contest of the season as the Madison aggregation is composed of star members of the varsity second team and the two forwards of the freshman class. The freshman class recently won the interclass championship at the state university, largely through the star playing of the two forwards, Kessinich and Lewis. The freshmen and second team squads number about fifty players and the pick of these belong to the team that will meet the Cardinals.

The Wisconsin varsity team will undoubtedly win the conference championship with ease, having disposed of her most formidable rival, Chicago. Judging from the large scores that the

In 1890 Chas. H. Hoyt told Leach to write himself a part in "The Trip to Chinatown." Mr. Leach opened at the Grand Opera House in Chicago, the part was a protean blackmaling newspaper reporter. Mr. Leach did excellently with the part, but the newspapers got after the character so strongly the part had to be cut out. Later, Mr. Leach has been with Mort H. However, Mr. Leach considers the part of Patrick Skelly as affording him more opportunities for clever detailed character work than any part has ever portrayed.

THE RECALL AT JANESVILLE.
The first application of the recall provision of the law, under the city commission government plan in this state, has been made at Janesville. A petition demanding the recall of Councilman Cummings was filed Saturday, and similar petitions for the recall of the other councilman and the mayor will be filed this week, meaning the election of an entirely new set of city officials, if the recallists prove to represent a majority sentiment among the voters of Janesville. Similar recall petitions were filed about a month ago, but proved to be technically faulty and thus necessitated the preparation of new petitions.

As this is the first test of the recall provision under the Wisconsin law the result will be watched with a good deal of interest, and especially in other Badger cities which are now operating under the commission plan. The really curious thing about the Janesville situation is the fact that the recall of the commission officials is not sought because these officials have either violated the law, or been negligent in the enforcement of the same, but rather because they have been too active in the enforcement of the law. In other words, the new commission administration at Janesville set about the task of cleaning up vice and disorder in that city, greatly to the satisfaction of the better element of the citizens there, but with corresponding annoyance to those directly interested in perpetuating the old "wide open" conditions. And it is this latter element which now seeks the recall of the mayor and councilmen, hoping to displace them by officials who will be more lenient and more easily controlled.

The whole question, therefore, hinges on a choice between law and order on the one hand, and lawlessness and disorder on the other hand, and as the issue is plain and well understood by the people of Janesville it is impossible to believe the contemplated recall of the present city officials will be successful. On the contrary the honest, law-abiding and order loving citizens of Janesville should soundly repudiate the effort to recall officials whose only fault has been a strict enforcement of regulations to promote decency and order, by checking and suppressing vice, conditions that are a menace to the entire community—Oshkosh Northwest.

The Janesville recall is attracting widespread attention, not only in the state, but throughout the country, and the outcome will be watched with interest. The situation is so novel that it opens up a field of conjecture, and many people who have been shouting the praises of the recall, as one of the great reform measures, find that there is another side to the question which they had not considered. Should the effort to remove city officials for enforcing the law, succeed in Janesville, it will be a bid for other cities to bring similar action, and this can be done without trouble, for twenty-five per cent of the voters in every city believe in the wide open town, and they would be glad to join a recall movement, if occasion demanded.

A GOOD MOVE.
The bill introduced by Representative Rosa, to repeal the law which provides for a Fire and Police Board, as applied to commission ruled cities, is a move in the right direction, and every commission ruled city in the state will endorse the action.

The law was passed to take the police force out of politics, and under the council system, it may be helpful in this direction, as the Fire and Police Board is supposed to be non-partisan, and free from prejudice.

But the commission plan is free from politics. It is a concrete form of government, where three men are held responsible for every department. The police force, however, is beyond their control, because it is created by the Fire and Police Board. The result is that the commission is deprived of authority in this most important department, and still held accountable.

The mayor has less authority over the police force than a section boss has over his squad of men. He can neither appoint nor discharge, and conditions are a constant menace because of this lack of authority. No corporation would attempt to do business in this way, and no city can, successfully.

When the bill is cited for hearing before the committee, every interested city in the state should be well represented, so that intelligent action can be taken.

The city of Janesville is to try out the recall. This is to be the first application of this form of government in the state and, strange to say, the charge against the officials whom the petitioners desire recalled is not that they have neglected their duties as public officials, but that they have taken those duties too seriously and enforced the law too well. The members of Janesville's commissions somehow were imbued with the idea that laws and ordinances had been enacted to be enforced and they enforced them. There has been much chafing under the collar and enough citizens have signed petitions asking for a recall to require a special election. Thus the question will not turn upon the efficiency of the officials so much as on whether Janesville is to be a law-abiding or a wide open town. In the meantime Janesville will get a lot of free advertising. Just how wholesome it will be will depend entirely upon the election returns.—Fond du Lac Commonwealth.

Now that the recall lists are all filed the next thing is to wait and see if they are in proper form to call a special election. It is to be hoped they are and the matter can be decided by a vote of the people without further delay.

Governor Wilson pays a neat tribute to his old friend La Follette in an address delivered in the east. He probably feels as though some thanks were due the Wisconsin senator for helping him carry Wisconsin last November.

Bill after bill is piling into the legislative waste basket at Madison and when the time limit is set there will be so many that it will be fourth of July before the work will be finished. Great is reform.

No matter which way the issue is twisted the recall movement merely reverts to the question of law observance or lawlessness. The voters will not be blinded by any subterfuge on other questions.

The New York man who refused to accept an auto as a present for his wife proved his wisdom as he knew who would have to take the blame if the old thing refused to work properly.

CALL IS RECEIVED TO STATE MEETING

Announcements of Union of Suffrage Societies Made at Meeting of County Political Equality League.

A meeting of the Rock County Political Equality League was held yesterday afternoon in Library Hall. It was the first meeting since November for the local organization, which has been awaiting the union of the two state suffrage organizations. Word was received early in the week that the union has been effected through the efforts of Miss James and Miss Zona Sale, the popular novelists. Yesterday's meeting was to announce this fact and tell of the monster convention to be held in Madison next week.

The Wisconsin Woman Suffrage Association, founded by the pioneer suffragist, Lucy Stone in 1882, and the more recent but large and powerful Political Equality League have had different phases of the work and labored in co-operation during the recent campaign. But for reasons of solidarity and economy in organization the two societies have decided to unite in one body. This will be done at a convention to be held in Madison Tuesday and Wednesday, February 4 and 5. Suffrage sympathizers from all over the state will gather there, not as representatives of any organization, but as suffragists. Everyone present will have a vote in shaping the policies of the new, single suffrage organization which hopes to march to speedy victory for the cause of woman suffrage in Wisconsin.

The following is the call to convention received here at county headquarters.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 25, 1913.
Dear Chairman:
Our long silence is due to a series of board meetings of the Wisconsin Woman's Suffrage Association and the Political Equality League, in an endeavor to formulate plans. These plans are at last perfected and the W. W. S. A. and the P. E. L. are now asking you to co-operate with us in calling a great convention in Madison, Feb. 4 and 5. Please see that this convention is advertised in your local papers and urge every man and woman, old and young, who is interested in this great step in democracy, to be present. None can afford to be indifferent to this important question. Every chairman is especially urged to come prepared to make a report.

We are necessarily late in calling this convention. Please help us push it and make it a great success. Remember it is your convention and we need your advice and help. Every one present will be given a vote. Yours for a coming victory,
"ZONA GALE, vice president of W. W. S. A.

CLAIM THIEVES STOLE ROOF FROM HOUSE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, Jan. 30.—K. A. Williams who lives alone and works at night complained today that thieves had stolen the roof of his house. "If it rains or snows today my furniture will be ruined," he told the police. Williams' house is a one room affair on which he had just placed a new roof,

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

Good News for the U. C.
The ultimate consumer need not be downhearted, for while some commodities are going up others are coming down. It was somewhat of a poser when he was confronted by the fact that there has been a heavy advance in the price of sugar, but the glad news has just been announced in London that there has been a sharp decrease in the price of radium, which is not only $80,000 a gram, the lowest since it was discovered by M. and Mme. Curie.

The ultimate consumer will be delighted to know that this great health restorer and general all around boon to mankind can now be secured at such a trifling cost. A man can plunk down $80,000 and carry away a whole gram of the substance where formerly it would have cost him more than $100,000. A gram, by the way, is nearly large enough to make a shirtstud for a flea.

The reduction in price will no doubt cause a great flurry in the radium market, which has been rather stagnant for some time on account of its prohibitive cost. Persons who have felt up to this time as though they could not afford a liberal supply of the precious substance will be ordering it from the wholesale houses and storing it up in the coal bin down cellar, just as though it were anthracite. In fact, it will probably be only a short time until there will be but very little difference in the price of radium and coal. The news from England regarding radium is very reassuring and will tend to satisfy the ultimate consumer that he has much to be thankful for.

VETERAN ODD FELLOWS ARE AWARDED HONORS

Hugh McCaffery and Frank Blanchard Given Jeweled Badges by Janesville Lodge No. 90.

Hugh McCaffery and Frank Blanchard, veteran members of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, were honored by Janesville City Lodge No. 90 at its regular meeting and annual roll call at their new hall Tuesday evening by being presented with jeweled Odd Fellow badges. Mr. McCaffery has been a member of the lodge for thirty-five years, and Mr. Blanchard for thirty years. The conferring of the distinction came as a complete surprise to the two gentlemen, who expressed their thanks to the lodge in a few brief remarks.

One hundred and fifty-two of the 296 members of the lodge responded to the roll call in person, and fifteen by letter. After the business and ritual session, a special program was given. C. W. Crumb of Milton, state grand master of the order, was present and gave an address, and officers and other members of the local lodge made impromptu speeches. Music was furnished by the Odd Fellows' orchestra and male quartet. Refreshments were served in the dining room after the program. Rebekahs and the Odd Fellows' wives shared in the evening's entertainment.

Grand Master Crumb informed the members of Lodge No. 90 that it now ranked third in the state in point of membership and expressed the opinion that by the end of the year it would reach first rank.

DINNER STORIES

"John!" said the newly married business man.
"Yes sir," responded the office boy.
"Call up my wife every fifteen minutes and mumble 'Love-dovey' toot-toots."

scow-wootsey' about seven or eight times."

The great Rabbi Gamaliel once brought the Scriptures of his nation to the Roman Emperor, Hadrian, who, after a study of the sacred books, rashly retorted to the rabbi that in the story of Genesis the Creator was little better than a thief, because He had stolen one of Adam's ribs. Gamaliel was bewildered and perplexed, but his daughter rose to the occasion. "Let me answer the Emperor," she begged, "and I will vindicate our holy writings."

So on the next day she presented herself before Hadrian.

"O Emperor of the Romans," she cried, "truly a terrible thing has happened, wherefore we invoke thy aid!"

Hadrian was greatly concerned, and asked what it was. The Hebrew maiden replied that at the dead hour of midnight a thief had subtly and stealthily entered their abode and had stolen away a silver dragon, although it was true, she added, that he had left a golden flagon in its place.

"Why," cried the Roman Emperor, "that was no robber, but a benefactor! Would that such a one might rob me, too!"

The Hebrew maiden smiled a subtle oriental smile. "Ah!" she said, looking down and blushing sweetly. "Why, then, do you blame the Creator and accuse Him of theft, seeing that, if He took a rib from Adam, He left him Eve instead?"

Dr. Reid, the celebrated medical writer, was requested by a lady of literary eminence to call at her house. "Be sure you recollect the address," she said, as she quitted the room: "No, 1 Chesterfield street." "Madam," said the doctor, "I am too great an admirer of politeness not to remember Chesterfield, and I fear, too selfish ever to forget number 1."

WERE WELL PLEASED WITH DEMONSTRATION

Mayor Fathers, Councilman Cummings and Chief Klein Ride on Madison Motor Fire Apparatus.

Mayor James A. Fathers, Councilman R. M. Cummings and Chief of the Fire Department H. C. Klein returned from Madison last evening well pleased with the performance of the new Seagrave motor chemical hose wagon which was demonstrated for them by a representative of the manufacturers. They rode on the truck when it responded to an actual fire alarm, turned corners at twenty miles an hour without slowing perceptibly, and ran at speeds up to thirty-five miles an hour. Although the truck is not yet in actual service and was headed the wrong way when the alarm came in, it turned around after the other apparatus had left the station and overtook them in seven blocks. The machine climbed the steepest hills in the city without changing of gears and ran over miles of suburban streets through slippery snow with the greatest ease. The engine appeared to have an abundance of power and responded easily and quickly to the demands made upon it.

Mayor Fathers and Councilman Cummings also made calls at the offices of the railway, tax, and industrial commissions to transact city business.

CROSSES THE OCEAN TO MEET HER LOVER AND BE HIS BRIDE

New Glarus Man at Local Station to Meet Sweetheart Who Arrives From Switzerland to Wed Him Today.

Traveling alone all the way from her home in Thurgau, Switzerland, to meet her lover who awaited her in Wisconsin where he had come to make his fortune two years ago and to prepare a home for her, Rose Markl, tired, from her long journey but happy with the anticipation of meeting her fiancé arrived in Janesville at ten-thirty o'clock this morning.

She was not disappointed for Albert Wolfe, to whom she was betrothed before he left his native land, now a prosperous business man at New Glarus, Wis., was at the St. Paul depot to welcome her. He was the first to see her and, hurrying travelers on the platform turned away with kindly smiles at the lovers' greeting.

Everything was in readiness for the wedding which was solemnized at one o'clock at the office of Justice of the Peace Chas. H. Lange in the Hayes building. The ceremony was read by Mr. Lange in English and then in German, as the bride does not understand a word of English. J. F. Marty, proprietor of the New Glarus hotel and a friend of Mr. Wolfe, was the only witness to the marriage. They came to Janesville Tuesday to settle certain business matters and to secure the license and special permit.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe left for New Glarus this afternoon where the groom has prepared a home for his bride from over the sea. He recently purchased a baker shop in the village and is prospering at the trade he learned in the old country. His wife will be his assistant in the store and in spite of the new scenes and the new faces she feels sure that her lot will be a happy one.

Miss Markl stood her long journey bravely and well. She was on the ocean for seven days, her first voyage, and although ill for two days, she recovered to enjoy the latter part of her trip. She arrived in New York on Tuesday and lost no time in following out the schedule which the future husband had outlined for her. She found little trouble in the railroad journey from New York to Janesville at all times cheered by the confidence of meeting her lover upon arrival here. She is twenty-two years of age while Mr. Wolfe is twenty-five.

FIVE BIDS RECEIVED ON Y. M. C. A. PLANS

All Were Submitted by Local Contractors—Opened Last Evening But Contract Not Yet Awarded.

Bids submitted by five different contractors for the remodeling and new additions to be made to the local Y. M. C. A. building were opened at 7:30 o'clock last night at the office of Architects Blair & Blair. The competing contractors are J. A. Denning, Floyd Hurd, Van Pool Brothers, A. Sommers & Son, and Emil Paulz, all of this city. No account was made to secure bids from outside the city. The bids received were promptly turned over to the building committee of the Y. M. C. A. by Mr. Blair and will not be made public until the contract is awarded. The directors reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

The campaign for funds is still in progress, more money being needed to properly furnish the building, to put a tile floor in the reception room, and install an entrance way that will be in harmony with the rest of the building. Before the contract is let, the full amount of the subscriptions necessary to complete the building must be assured.

ASK RECALL ELECTION FOR ENTIRE COUNCIL

Petitions Against Councilman Millmore Filed Last Evening—Signed by 925 Electors.

Through the filing of a petition for the recall of Councilman C. K. Millmore late yesterday afternoon, it was determined beyond all question that the anti-administration forces in Janesville seek to remove from office the entire city council. Doubt was entertained by some whether this was their present purpose, as it was believed that their energies would be directed to the defeat at the polls of Councilman Cummings, but those who have kept in close touch with their campaign have never entertained that belief. There were 925 signatures on the Millmore petition, 927 on the Fathers petition, and 918 on the Cummings petition. The complaints on all were similar.

With the Millmore petitions was submitted a communication signed by a committee consisting of Charles H. Sykes, Peter J. Goodman, and John E. Kennedy, requesting that one election be called to elect successors to the present mayor and councilmen in order that the city may be spared the expense of holding three separate elections. They stated that their attorneys had advised them that one election would be legal.

Although there are rumors current that candidates will be placed in the field in opposition to the present incumbents and the nominees of the avowed recall promoters, this course will be opposed by the supporters of Mayor Fathers and Councilmen Cummings and Millmore, who believe that a division of the clean government forces would prove disastrous.

HOW THE GOVERNMENT FORECASTS WEATHER

ERIC R. MILLER, LOCAL FORECASTER AT STATE UNIVERSITY STATION, WRITES ON SUBJECT.

1ST ARTICLE OF SERIES

That Will Explain Methods Used by Government Weather Bureau in Determining Weather Conditions in Advance.

(By Eric R. Miller.)

If the ancient sun-worshippers had known as much as we now do of the part the air plays in nature they would have given it an equal share of adoration with the chief luminary. The sun may be father of life on the earth, but the atmosphere is the mother, sheltering and feeding that life. That it shelters we know from measurements of the temperature of the airless moon and from calculation of the temperatures that would prevail on the earth's surface if there were not atmosphere 350 degrees in the heat of the day and 120 degrees below zero in the cool of the morning. That the air feeds the plants on which our life depends is known from the observation of leaves in drawing nutriment from the air.

Pure air, found in the country, on mountains, and at sea, is a mixture of eleven or more gases, some of them uncombined chemical elements while others are chemical compounds of two or more substances. Water vapor is the most interesting atmospheric constituent, both for the relation it bears to life and for the part it takes in weather changes. It is the only atmospheric element that changes from gas to liquid and is solid at the temperatures prevailing on the earth. The quantity of water vapor in the air varies, with temperature, from 4 per cent in the humid tropics to almost absolute dryness in the extreme winter cold of the polar regions and of eastern Siberia.

Excepting water vapor the composition of the air does not vary appreciably, as careful analysis of air from all parts of the world agree surprisingly. Nitrogen and oxygen, uncombined chemical elements make up the bulk of the atmosphere. Dry air the former constitutes 78 per cent, the latter 21 per cent, while argon, an inert gas that long remained hidden in the nitrogen from its search of chemists' makes up nearly the remaining one per cent. The other seven gases are practically negligible so far as bulk goes, but most of them have peculiar properties that give them disproportionate importance. The air always has floating solid and liquid particles which may be considered part of it. These are water particles—fog, cloud, water haze—solid mineral matter from volcanic eruptions, fires, or blown up from the ground, and organic matter, some dead, but some live, seed-spores of yeast, molds and bacteria.

Since it is a material substance, air has the same properties as other forms of matter, namely mass and inertia. Thirteen cubic feet of air weigh about a pound. Air requires force to set it in motion, and when in motion it has momentum, and presses against obstacles in its path. We make use of these properties to drive wind mills, to lift kites and aeroplanes and suffer from them in sales and tornadoes.

As a gas it has the usual properties of gases, such as having no limit of surface like solids and liquids, but fills any space open to it. It contracts under pressure, and expands when pressure is removed. When heated, air expands if free, or if confined exerts increased pressure against its surroundings. When cooled it contracts if under a uniform pressure, or diminishes its pressure upon its surroundings if in a fixed inclosure. When compressed it warms, and in expansion it cools if no heat is allowed to flow to or from it.

The majority of the atmospheric gases are transparent to sunlight and heat, but of the minor components, water vapor, carbonic acid gas, or carbon dioxide as it is also called, and ozone, have the special property of absorbing both incoming radiation from the sun and outgoing radiation from the earth. If it were not for the warming by rising currents of air, these three gases and the dust floating in the air would be the only source of warmth for the upper air.

In relation to life the three gases, carbon dioxide, oxygen and nitrogen, of great importance. Animals derive the energy used in their rapid movements from the slow burning of carbon compounds eaten as food. Oxygen is consumed in this process and is taken for the purpose of the air in breathing. The burning of foods in the body results in the production of carbon dioxide, which is exhaled. About one-fifth of the oxygen taken in at each breath is used, the remaining four-fifths, with the nitrogen, and the added carbon dioxide being exhaled. Plants on the other hand use energy very slowly so that they consume very little oxygen. They consume very little oxygen. Carbon dioxide in the air is a supply of food for plants, "eaten" and digested in the green leaves of plants. The energy given up by the carbon dioxide in combining to form dioxide in the animal body must be related to them. The green leaf gets his from the sunlight falling upon it, so that plants digest carbon dioxide only in sunlight. In this process plants serve two useful purposes, replacing in the air the oxygen consumed by animals, and storing the energy of the sun, which would otherwise find its way back into space and be of no further use.

The nitrogen of the air is a relatively inert chemical element, and avoids combination with many other chemical elements. This property is very valuable for some purposes, since it is the anxiety of nitrogen to get out of chemical combination that makes nitro-glycerine and similar compounds so explosive, but for agriculture it is fortunate, for the reason that nitrogen in some of its compounds is an essential plant food, and it seems a great waste to have to end to Chile for nitrates, when the atmosphere above one square mile of land is calculated to contain twenty million tons of nitrogen, enough to furnish fertilizer for the whole world for fifty years. Lightning does induce the formation of minute quantities of nitrates and nitrites which are carried down by rain and snow and help to fertilize the soil.

While plants themselves are unable to digest the raw nitrogen of the air, there are auxiliaries, the nitrogen-fixing bacteria that are able to catch soils poor in nitrogen may be enriched from the inexhaustible supply of nitrogen in the atmosphere by jangling the clover and other legumes on which the desired bacteria usually live.

Viewed as a whole, the air is a mixture of gases. Its properties are the sum of the properties of its components. The air is of vast importance in the economy of nature. In its varied relations to life, both directly, and as a working substance driven by the energy flowing from the sun.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

To the Editor:

In view of the open winter which we are enjoying and the great anxiety of the ice men to obtain a sufficient quantity of the frozen fluid for next summer's consumption, I would request that the following little "essay" on ice be reprinted in your columns: (An Essay.)

Ice is a white substance, resembling a diamond and nearly as expensive. There are several reasons why ice is expensive. Sometimes the winter is too cold to cut it. Sometimes it is too warm to freeze it. Sometimes the summer is too hot to keep it. Sometimes it is so cold that the demand is so little that the price must be raised to make it profitable.

Ice is used principally in saloons. You will find it in highballs, and it is used in the composition of mixed drinks.

That's what makes them so expensive.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams BY WALT MASON

The young year is humping along; he's active and joyous and strong; he hasn't a voice or he'd loudly rejoice with laughter and jubilation song. If he had a voice he would sing: "All kinds of fair chances I bring; fair chances to rise from the mud to the skies, so seize them before they take wing." And all that the happiest year can give while it's journeying here is the chance to improve, to get out of your groove, and make for yourself a career.

The new year inspires men to try, to let their old weaknesses die; to get a new start with a brave, buoyant heart; and a light of resolve in the eye. And that's why the new year is best; it stirs up new hopes in each breast as we watch it cavort with a rippety-snort, the bright cheerful annual guest. The new year is looking away, but gives us our chances today, so let us begin to achieve and to win, before it is ancient and gray. Let's all get to work with a vim and put a rippety-hum, and wrestle and toil with the old-gasted soil, ere the new year is weary of him.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY Your health will require attention and outdoor activities will benefit you. Risks and disagreements will result unfavorably, but new friendships will be valuable.

Those born today will think deeply and discover truths and make inventions. They will be correspondingly careless of everyday affairs, and any habits of health or politeness, which are taught them in childhood, will be of great advantage to them, for after youth they will not study such things.

ELDERLY FOLKS! CALOMEL, SALTS AND CATHARTICS AREN'T FOR YOU.

HARMLESS, GENTLE "SYRUP OF FIGS" IS BEST TO CLEANSE YOUR STOMACH, LIVER AND 30 FEET OF BOWELS OF SOUR BILE, DECAYING FOOD, GASES AND CLOGGED UP WASTE.

You old people, Syrup of Figs is particularly for you. You who don't exercise as much as you need to; who like the easy chair; you, whose steps are slow and whose muscles are less elastic. You must realize that your liver and ten yards of bowels have also become less active.

Don't regard Syrup of Figs as physic. It stimulates the liver and bowels just as exercise would do if you took enough of it. It is not harsh like salts or cathartics. The help which Syrup of Figs gives to a torpid liver and weak, sluggish bowels is harmless, natural and gentle.

When eyes grow dim, you help them. Do the same with your liver and bowels when age makes them less active. There is nothing more important. Costive, clogged-up bowels mean that decaying, fermenting food is clogged there and the pores or ducts in these thirty feet of bowels suck this decaying waste and poisons into the blood. You will never get feeling right until this is corrected—but do it gently. Don't have a bowel wash; don't use a bowel irritant. For your sake, please use only gentle, effective Syrup of Figs. Then you are not drugging yourself, for Syrup of Figs is composed of only luscious figs, senna and aromatics which can not injure.

A teaspoonful tonight will gently, but thoroughly, move on and out of your system by morning all the sour bile, poisonous fermenting food and clogged-up waste matter without gripe, nausea or weakness.

But get the genuine. Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna." Refuse, with contempt, any other Fig Syrup unless it bears the name—prepared by the California Fig Syrup Company. Read the label.

HOW THIS WOMAN FOUND HEALTH

Would not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for All Rest of Medicine in the World.

Utica, Ohio.—"I suffered everything from a female weakness after baby came. I had numb spells and was dizzy, had black spots before my eyes, my back ached and I was so weak I could hardly stand up. My face was yellow, even my fingernails were colorless and I had discharges. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am stout, well and healthy. I can do all my own work and can walk to town and back and not get tired. I would not give your Vegetable Compound for all the rest of the medicines and they did me no good."—Mrs. MARY EARLEWINE, R.F.D. No. 3, Utica, Ohio.

Another Case.

Nebo, Ill.—"I was bothered for ten years with female troubles and the doctors did not help me. I was so weak and nervous that I could not do my work and every month I had to spend a few days in bed. I read so many letters about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound curing female troubles that I got a bottle of it. It did me more good than anything else I ever took and now it has cured me. I feel better than I have for years and tell everybody what the Compound has done for me. I believe I would not be living to-day but for that."—Mrs. HETTIE GREENSTREET, Nebo, Illinois.

MOLLY McDONALD

A TALE OF THE FRONTIER

By RANDALL PARRISH
Author of "Keith of the Border," "My Lady of Doubt," "My Lady of the South," etc., etc.

The guests were already beginning to struggle back to the dance hall from supper, and I waited in the shadow of the building for an opportunity to slip into the hotel unobserved. While I hid there a cavalry soldier from the fort rode up, swung down from his saddle, and ran up the steps. I heard him ask for Major McDonald. Almost immediately he came out again, and I passed him on the porch. Just inside the door I met my father. He was leaving the hotel with Dupont, and the latter swore savagely when I caught my father's arm, asking what message the orderly had brought. He answered strangely, saying he had received orders to go at once to Ripley on the stage; that he might be gone several days. There was nothing about all that to startle a soldier's daughter, but Dupont kept his hands on my father's arm, urging him to hurry. The actions of the man aroused my suspicions. I knew my father was acting paymaster, and I could perceive the outlines of a leather bag bulging beneath his overcoat. If this contained money, then I grasped Dupont's purpose. My plan of action occurred to me in a flash—I would accompany him until—until he was safely in the stage, and find opportunity to whisper warning. I remember asking him to wait a moment for me, and rushing to the cloak room after my coat. But when I returned they were gone. I ran out into the street, but they were not to be seen; they had not gone toward the stage office, for the lights revealed that distance clearly, and they had had no time in which to disappear within. With the one thought that Dupont had lured my father out of sight for purposes of robbery, I started to run down the men. Now you can see clearly as they climb the hill.

"There is no doubt," he admitted, "a single troop ahead of the main body; the others will be beyond the bend in the stream."

He stepped back, where he could look directly into her face.

"They are soldiers all right, but that was not what I wanted to be so certain about. When we ride down there, Molly girl, we shall be swallowed up into the old life once more, the old army life."

"Yes."

"Perhaps you do not realize how different it will be from out here alone together."

"Why should it be different?"

"I shall be again a soldier in the ranks, under orders, and you Major McDonald's daughter."

"But—but—" her eyes full of appeal.

"No, little girl," he explained quickly, reaching up and touching her gently; "we are never going to say anything about that to those down there—his comrades in arms. It is going to be our secret. I am glad you told me; it has brought us together as, perhaps, nothing else could, but there is no reason why the world should ever know. Let them think he died defending his trust. Perhaps he did; what you overheard might have been said for a purpose, but, even if it were true, he had been driven to it by a merciless woman. It is ours to defend, not blacken his memory."

She bent slowly down until her cheek touched his.

"I thought you would say that," she returned slowly, "but what else you said is not so there will never again be a barrier of rank between us." She straightened in the saddle, looking down into his eyes. "Whoever the officer may be in command of that detachment, I want you to tell him all."

"All?"

"Yes, that we are engaged; I am proud to have them know."

The truth was shining in her eyes, glowing on her cheeks. She leaned forward.

"Kiss me, and believe!"

"Molly, Molly," he whispered, "Never will I doubt again."

They could perceive the blue of the overcoats as they rode over the ridge, and at their sudden appearance the little column of horsemen came to a halt. Hamlin flung up one hand in signal, and the two urged their ponies down the side of the hill. Three men spurred forth to meet them, spreading out slightly as though still suspicious of some trick, but, as they drew near, the leader suddenly waved his hand, and they dashed forward.

"Hamlin! Glad to see you again," the first rider greeted the Sergeant cordially. "Can this be Major McDonald's daughter?"

"Yes, Major Elliott; I can repeat the story as we ride along, sir. You are the advance of Custer's expedition, I presume?"

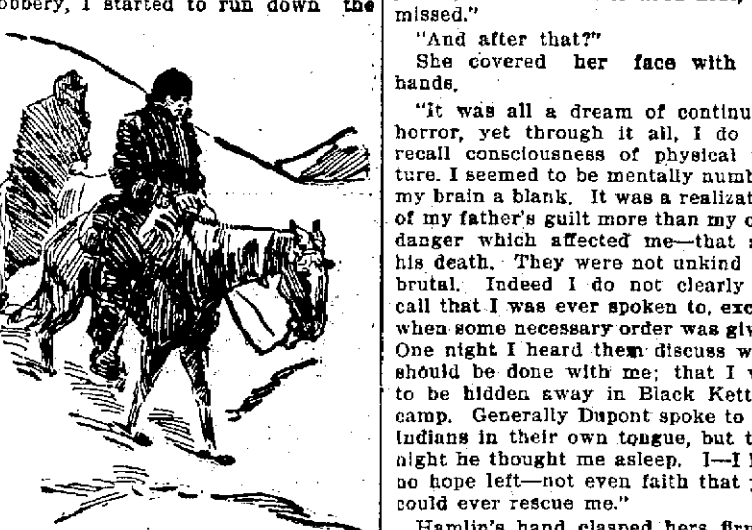

"We are; the others are some miles behind, moving slowly so that the wagons can keep within touch. Wonderful the way those wagons have pushed ahead over the rough country. Have only missed camp twice since we left Fort Dodge."

"When was that, sir?"

"Before the blizzard all except your troop were at Camp Supply; they had joined since, and it was then we heard about your trip down here. What became of your men, Sergeant?"

"Wasson and one private were killed, sir; the other private was frozen so badly I had to leave him in shelter on the Cimarron."

The Mere Presence of Hamlin Was an Assurance of Safety.

Little alley-way next the hotel. I knew now how foolish I was, but then I was reckless. It was dark and I saw and heard nothing to warn me of danger. It was in my mind that my father had been lured on to the open prairie behind the hotel. Suddenly I was seized roughly, and a cloth whipped over my face before I could even scream. I heard a voice say: "Damned if it ain't the girl! What will we do with her?" and then Dupont's voice answered gruffly: "Hell, there ain't anything to do, but take the little hussy along. She'd queer the whole game, an' we've got an extra horse." They jerked me forward so roughly, and I was so frightened that—that I must have fainted. At any rate I remembered nothing more distinctly until we had crossed the river, and I was on horseback wrapped in a blanket, and tied to the saddle. Some one was holding me erect; I could not move my arms, but could see and hear. It was dark, and we were moving slowly; there were two Indians ahead, and a white man riding each side of me. They thought me unconscious still, and spoke occasionally; little by little I recognized their voices and understood their words.

Her voice broke into a sob, but the

She bent slowly down until her cheek touched his.

"I thought you would say that," she returned slowly, "but what else you said is not so there will never again be a barrier of rank between us." She straightened in the saddle, looking down into his eyes. "Whoever the officer may be in command of that detachment, I want you to tell him all."

"All?"

"Yes, that we are engaged; I am proud to have them know."

The truth was shining in her eyes, glowing on her cheeks. She leaned forward.

"Kiss me, and believe!"

They could perceive the blue of the overcoats as they rode over the ridge, and at their sudden appearance the little column of horsemen came to a halt. Hamlin flung up one hand in signal, and the two urged their ponies down the side of the hill. Three men spurred forth to meet them, spreading out slightly as though still suspicious of some trick, but, as they drew near, the leader suddenly waved his hand, and they dashed forward.

"Hamlin! Glad to see you again," the first rider greeted the Sergeant cordially. "Can this be Major McDonald's daughter?"

"Yes, Major Elliott; I can repeat the story as we ride along, sir. You are the advance of Custer's expedition, I presume?"

"We are; the others are some miles behind, moving slowly so that the wagons can keep within touch. Wonderful the way those wagons have pushed ahead over the rough country. Have only missed camp twice since we left Fort Dodge."

"When was that, sir?"

"Before the blizzard all except your troop were at Camp Supply; they had joined since, and it was then we heard about your trip down here. What became of your men, Sergeant?"

"Yes."

"Perhaps you do not realize how different it will be from out here alone together."

"Why should it be different?"

"I shall be again a soldier in the ranks, under orders, and you Major McDonald's daughter."

"But—but—" her eyes full of appeal.

"No, little girl," he explained quickly, reaching up and touching her gently; "we are never going to say anything about that to those down there—his comrades in arms. It is going to be our secret. I am glad you told me; it has brought us together as, perhaps, nothing else could, but there is no reason why the world should ever know. Let them think he died defending his trust. Mr. Harsha has been through the mill and he says that a man who stakes a homestead and hasn't the two G's—gumption and grit—had better quit. He says further that a homesteader will stand a better chance of succeeding if he has $1000 in cash.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE

FERDIE'S FINISH.

"The Wild West calls its own, my son. About the purple hills; The cowboys must be showa, my son."

"Ah! ague, shakes and chills!"

"It was noon hour at 'Toots' Tommy's, the hardest joint in Google Eye Gulch, Arizona."

Every once in a while a full-blooded oath would counteract any lack of strength in the horse-and-bus. Amidst the rattle of dishes and the musical clank of knives against front teeth, Ferdie Frothinglow delicately picked his way to the only vacant seat, "Blamee Horn-Handed Hill and Blamee Eye like."

An ominous murmur swept across the room and found its way out the back door.

"Waitah!" called Ferdie, hanging his cane on the back of his chair. "Oh! I say, waitah!"

"Another murmur, more ominous than the first, rose to the ceiling and mingled darkly with the clouds of tobacco smoke."

Wall-Eyed Hank, the waiter, leaned over him.

"Whatcha want?" he roared. "First of all, please," said Ferdie, "would you mind bringing a napkin?"

"The corner, without leaving his seat at the table near the door, returned a verdict of 'suicide.'"

AN OLD REMEDY

Beef, Iron and Wine is one of the good old remedies that has outlived a score of patent tonics, reasonable in price, satisfactory tonic, appetizer and mild stimulant. There is nothing better for that tired, worried, listless feeling or run-down condition of the system after illness of any kind. It tones the whole system, stimulates digestion, gives you appetite, is a good iron tonic for weak, pale children or old people, far more effective than malt extracts or so-called wines of cod liver oil that depend upon their stimulants alone. Beef, Iron and Wine tones and sustains. It assists nature to regenerate, it's a food to the sick and nursing mothers.

Mr. Fernig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, prepares our Beef, Iron and Wine. It's always fresh, made from the very best extract of beef, wholesome, properly aged sherry wine and soluble iron.

We don't sell ready-made, hand-made, factory-manufactured Beef, Iron and Wine. We believe and know that medicine should be compounded only by the experienced and scientifically trained.

Try a bottle of Mr. Beef, Iron and Wine as made by Mr. Fernig, 75c a full pint. Note its wholesome taste and invigorating effect. You will be more than satisfied. Get it at the Bader Drug Co., Milwaukee and River Sts. The drug store that makes a specialty of drugs.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Jan. 30, 1873.—From Milwaukee comes the gratifying news that last night the board of directors of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company have elected Hon. Willard Merrill of this city as their secretary. This position has been informally offered Mr. Merrill before, but until now he has not felt inclined to accept. It is gratifying to the citizens of Janesville to know that one of its respected members has thus been favored with a lucrative position of honor and trust given only to a few whose trustworthiness and ability are beyond question—yet we cannot but feel a regret over the action of the board will necessitate the removal of Mr. Merrill from our midst. For twenty years he has resided here and the many qualities within him have won for him the esteem of the entire community and the warmest regard of his personal friends. He came to Wisconsin in 1856, having graduated from Amherst College and been admitted to the bar in 1865, and settled in Prairie du Chien where he remained until 1869. Removing to Janesville he resumed the practice of law alone until 1868 when he entered a law partnership with Hon. J. B. Cassoday.

A sad case of exhaustion occurred the other day. A young ex-clerk, who has been sacrificing sleep for the sake of a lady's company, seated himself in a chair in the Myers Hotel office to wait for the dinner. He looked good, speedily got busy and overcame him. He slept the sleep of the weary and soon his magnified tongue began to give utterance to the thoughts which burned his wakeful hours. Of course people in the office gathered around to hear what he said. Their curiosity was gratified for he wasn't at all mealy-mouthed in making his confession. It bothered his friends though, to find out why he doesn't marry the girl now that he has his mind set upon her. He carries a spring clothes pin in his vest pocket since that day to fasten his lips together when he sits down in a public place.

Twenty-five thousand dollars have been appropriated to meet the expenditures of the institution for the blind during the coming year.
